

WILSON URGES REPEAL OF PROHIBITION ON BEER AND WINE NC 4 REACHES PONTA DELGADA; HAWKER IS BELIEVED LOST

RETURN OF RAIL AND WIRE SYSTEMS TO OWNERS ASKED OF CONGRESS IN MESSAGE

In Only Document of Its Kind in American Legislative Annals President Also Urges "Teeth" for Tariff Laws to Protect American Industry and Outlines Plan for Labor Legislation.

REVISION OF WAR TAX SCHEDULES INCLUDED

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Wilson, in his message to Congress today, recommended repeal of the war-time prohibition law—so far as it applies to wines and beer only—announced definitely that the railroad systems and telephone and telegraph lines would be returned to private ownership, urged a revision of war taxes, and outlined generally a program respecting labor.

These were the "high spots" of the President's message, cabled from Paris.

Besides that he again urged enactment of the woman's suffrage constitutional amendment, recommended that the tariff laws be supplied with teeth to protect American industry against foreign attacks, spoke for legislation to facilitate American enterprise, through the expansion of shipping and backed Secretary Lane's program for land for returning soldiers.

Of the Paris peace conference and the League of Nations the President merely said it would be premature to discuss them or express a judgment. He also avoided discussion of domestic legislation at length because of his long absence from Washington.

Congress heard a unique document, the only one of its kind ever transmitted across the ocean from a President on a foreign shore. For the first time in six years it heard a presidential message read by a reading clerk instead of assembling to hear the President deliver an address in person.

The recommendation for the repeal of war-time prohibition and for return of the rail and wire systems, while not unexpected by some, contained the greatest element of surprise and provoked the most widespread comment of the many tasks set before Congress by the President.

GEMAS SENTENCED TO THREE TO FIVE YEARS FOR ROBBERY

Local Man Pleads Guilty in Court to Charge of Stealing $1,200 From Pool Room.

Not less than three years nor more than five in the Western Penitentiary was the penalty imposed in court in Uniontown this morning by Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen on Lou C. Gemas who entered a plea of guilty to the charge of rifling the safe of the West Penn pool room, Connellsville, the night of April 13, of $3,200.

Former Judge R. E. Umbel appeared in behalf of Gemas, asking that he be paroled. When informed by the court that a parole could not be granted in a case of this character, Judge Umbel did not press the plea.

The amount taken from the safe was named by District Attorney S. John Morrow as approximately $3,200.

Walter McPoland and Elizabeth Evans, alleged to have been implicated in the case, are still in jail. Their cases have not been disposed of. McPoland asserts he was persuaded by the girl to keep watch while Gemas robbed the safe.

Thirty-two members were enrolled in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Y. M. C. A. membership campaign during the opening day yesterday, according to reports submitted at the first of the daily dinners last evening at the Y. M. C. A. The two divisions of the teams that are soliciting members did not come up to expectations. Many captains of the teams made no report whatever. "General" George W. Campbell of the "Army" scored the other side for not presenting a larger number of members, but was informed that he would be forced to take a back seat this evening when the reports would be handed in. The results announced were:

The campaign today took more form, the members of the teams getting down to more intensive work.

GLOWING TRIBUTE PAID TO THE WORK OF REV. RICHARDSON

Ten Men of Stamp of Local Minister Would Put Pittsburg Area in Lead in Centenary Drive.

The following testimonial of the good work done by Rev. G. L. Richardson in the centenary movement in the Methodist Episcopal church is given in the following letter received by Rev. Richardson from Financial Secretary Will E. McGord, who has charge of the entire Pittsburg area:

"Doctor Franklin Knotts of the American University at Washington, D. C., was saying to me the other day that if we had had 10 men of your stamp in the Pittsburg area for advance gifts we would have been mighty close to the star area in the county at the opening of the drive. I recall my first conversation with you with reference to your local situation at Connellsville, and its relation to the centenary campaign. I told Dr. Knotts about that conversation, and he remarked that if you could throw yourself into the centenary, in the face of your local situation, he felt that some other men with whom he had been touch elsewhere in the area had less than no excuse at all for their lack of enthusiasm and inspiration. I write you in this vein because I feel we have not expressed our appreciation of your efforts as we would have done had all of us not been so driven in the past few weeks. I know Doctor Appleton Bush feels as I do."

He further adds:

"Doctor Bush has just told me of your splendid total, to date, of $40,203.00. We knew you were going to make a splendid record but we did not realize that you proposed to lead the McKeesport district. I hereby nominate your church as the probable high church in your district for the drive."

NEWS STEALERS ENJOINED

Permanent Injunction to Prevent Taking Matter from A. P. Papers.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The suit brought by the Associated Press against the International News Service in the United States District Court came up on the calendar yesterday and a decree was entered for the complainant.

The suit was instituted to restrain the International News Service from taking the news of the Associated Press from its members or newspapers published by them and using or selling it. A preliminary injunction was granted July 7, 1917, which has been sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States. The final decree grants a perpetual injunction.

BOY SCOUTS CAMP FUND DRIVE HALF WAY TO OBJECTIVE

Remarkable Success Marks the First Day of the Campaign.

THE PLANS ARE CHANGED

Banquet Will Be Held to Celebrate Going Over Top Instead of Starting Drive; Teams Meet With Cordial Reception; Another Site Suggested.

Instead of waiting until the banquet to be held in the dining room of the Presbyterian church next Monday evening, as the fund for starting the drive for the time of $3,000 with which to provide a permanent summer camp for the Boy Scouts, Campaign Manager J. W. McClaren and his associates decided that it would be much the better plan to put the campaign over the top this week then hold the banquet in celebration of the event. In accordance with this decision a team consisting of Mr. McClaren, Earl C. Moore, W. L. Wright, R. M. Evans, Charles A. Crowley, W. P. Schenck, E. T. Norton, J. L. Evans, A. B. Hood, Guy Corrado and W. O. Adrian began the canvass yesterday.

The teams met with such success on the first day that nearly one-half of the amount had been pledged up to last evening. The work is being continued today and it is certain to result in the full amount, and possibly more, being subscribed within a day or two.

The canvassers have been accorded a most cordial reception everywhere and not a single refusal to give had been recorded up to last night. No large amounts are solicited, the purpose of the canvassers being to enlist the interest of as large a number of persons in the plan as possible. The subscriptions received range from $10 to $100. One man who was asked for $50 said that such amount did not adequately represent his interest in the Boy Scout movement, and he insisted on making his subscription $100. Another asked for the same amount intimated that he would just as readily have given four or five times as much.

On account of the rainy weather and other circumstances no inspection has yet been made of ground in the vicinity of Hemminger's Mills with a view to selecting a camp site. An inspection will also be made of a site suggested by D. H. Horton who is perhaps more familiar with localities suitable for such purposes than any one else in this section. This site, Mr. Horton considers, is ideal in every respect and is readily accessible.

HORSE SAVES FLOCK

Stamping of Animal in Stable Frightens Away Thief.

The stamping of a horse in the stable at the home of J. H. Beeghly in McCormick avenue Saturday night probably saved Mr. Beeghly the loss of his flock of chickens. Only one hen was taken, he said. He believes that the noise of the horse frightened the thief away.

A wrench and a piece of gas pipe were left behind in the hasty retreat.

RED CROSS WOMEN PLAN DINNER FOR 3,000 SOLDIERS

Will Be Served in the Churches During Home-coming Celebration.

PROGRAM SHAPING NICELY

Outline of Historical Pageant to Be Staged on Woman's Day Soon Will Be Ready For Publication; Parade to Be Banner Event of Its Kind.

A monster parade, an elaborate historical pageant, in which many persons will participate and a dinner for 3,000 soldiers, will feature Woman's Day on July 8, of the soldiers home-coming celebration of Fayette county to be held in Connellsville, beginning on Sunday evening, July 6, with memorial services. At a meeting of the chairman of the different committees held last night in the Red Cross rooms in the old high school building, reports submitted by the chairman showed that the women are untiringly working towards the success of the celebration, and that their plans are being worked out very rapidly. Mrs. J. French Kerr, general chairman of the women's committee, presided over the meeting and after all reports had been heard from new business was taken up and discussed.

Previous to the general meeting committees of women from the churches met, with Mrs. Ellis B. Burgess presiding, and discussed plans for the soldiers' dinner. Arrangements will be made to feed at least 3,000 soldiers from various parts of the county. These dinners will be held in the churches, providing they are large enough, and if not halls will be secured. At each place from 200 to 300 soldiers will be served, the number depending upon the size of the congregation. The menu will be uniform and the soldiers will be served from 11 to 1 o'clock. Tickets, on which will be printed the name of the church where the soldier is to eat, will be distributed at the Red Cross headquarters only. The women from each church will do their own purchasing.

Mrs. J. French Kerr reported that plans for the historical pageant, representing all periods from the Indians

PRIVATE ROWE KILLED IN ACTION; HAD BEEN REPORTED AS MISSING

Uncertainty Cleared By Appearance of Company D Boy's Name in Casualty List Today.

Private Samuel A. Rowe of Company D, previously reported missing in action, was killed in action, official announcement to that effect having been made by the War Department.

Private Rowe's mother, Mrs. Maria Rowe of South Eighth street, Greenwood, received a telegram from the War Department last fall, stating that her son was missing in action. Receiving no further official announcement or word from her son since that time Mrs. Rowe feared that rumors to the effect that "Sam" had been killed in action, were only too true. However, up until recently she had hopes of her son returning with other members of his company.

Private Rowe enlisted in Company D when the company was recruiting at the armory for service overseas. He resided with his mother and was widely and favorably known. A brother, Charles Rowe of Greenwood, survives. His father is dead.

PROPOSES MEMORIAL HALL

Permanent Home for Veterans of Several Wars Urged by Mayor.

During the council meeting last night Mayor Duggan outlined a plan he had in mind for the erection of a lasting memorial here in honor of the soldiers of the Civil War, the Spanish War, and the World War. He said he thought a memorial hall would be by far better than the erection of a monument.

The mayor said that the Grand Army of the Republic had been drifting from place to place for the past 45 years, holding meetings wherever they could and that the Spanish War veterans were also without a meeting hall. He said the same condition would likely exist for the veterans of the recent war if something were not done.

COUNCIL VOTES TO PAVE THREE MORE STREETS

Seventh, West Side, Robbins and Madison Are Included in the Program.

START SEVENTH AT ONCE

Bids for First Street, Murphy Avenue, Francis Avenue, Chestnut Street and Davidson Avenue, Opened at Previous Meeting, Are All Rejected.

Council last night determined on the paving of three streets, Madison avenue, Robbins and Seventh street. The work on the latter two will begin immediately as the property holders on both thoroughfares are willing to assume their share of the cost. The paving of Madison avenue, however, will have to be advertised as all the persons holding property on that street would not sign the petition.

This work on Seventh street will be started on the first of next month by M. Duggan to whom the contract was let some time ago. Last night William Kelly, manager of the Connellsville Iron Works, appeared and said the persons living on that street were prepared to pay 50 per cent of their share of the cost as soon as the contractor started. Twenty-five per cent will be paid when the work is half done and the remaining 25 per cent when the job is finished. The estimated cost is $5 per foot.

F. E. Younkin appeared with a petition signed by property holders on Robbins street. Every one on that

ITALIAN SHOT

Victim Pleads Ignorance; Woman in Case, Police Say.

Mystery surrounds the shooting of Vincenzo Tullidino, 18 years old, of York avenue, last night. Accompanied by two boys Tullidino came to the hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the left shoulder. He told hospital authorities that he did not know who shot him. His father, James Tullidino, and companions also say they know nothing of the shooting. An X-ray picture was taken today of the wound in order to locate the bullet.

The police reported this morning that Tullidino had gone to a house in the North End, where he is said to have been invited by a woman, but on her refusal to let him enter he attempted to force his way in and she fired the shot.

NC 3 IS OUT OF THE RACE

Buffeting by Seas After Craft is Compelled to Alight Because of Heavy Fog Seriously Damages the Flagship of Commander John H. Towers.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The naval seaplane NC 4 arrived at Ponta Delgada from Horta at 10:24 A. M. Washington time.

The official report to the Navy Department from Rear Admiral Jackson showed that the big plane covered the distance of 150 miles in one hour and 24 minutes or at the rate of more than 55 miles an hour.

HORTA, May 20.—The seaplane NC 4 started from Ponta Delgada at 12:40 P. M. today, Greenwich meridian time. The weather was clear and the wind favorable.

LONDON, May 20.—No definite news of the whereabouts of the Sopwith airplane carrying Harry Hawker and Lieutenant Commander R. McKenzie Grievie having been received here it was believed in admiralty circles early this afternoon that the daring aviators had come to grief soon after they left the shore of Newfoundland Sunday afternoon.

According to all reports no messages came from the airplane's wireless—not even a note of distress—and it is believed that Hawker would have sent some message unless he met with an accident soon after the start.

Off the Irish coast the weather is bad today and there are no further rumors that the Sopwith machine fell into the sea within sight of the river Shannon.

HORTA, May 20 (10 A. M.)—A series of squalls which seemed to chase one another over the nearby mountains and along the coast between Horta and Ponta Delgada delayed the departure of the seaplane NC 4 for Ponta Delgada this morning.

LONDON, May 20 (10:55 A. M.)—The weather is so bad off the coast of Ireland that airplanes ordered by the ministry to search for Aviator Harry G. Hawker's machine are unable to fly. There were strong southeast winds; rain and fog at intervals during the night.

All communication centers in London are silent as to news from Hawker or Lieutenant Commander Grievie. Even the rumors which prevailed yesterday and last night have died out.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The naval seaplane NC 3, flagship of Commander John H. Towers, will not be able to resume the trans-Atlantic flight. A message to the Navy Department early today from Admiral Jackson at Horta said the damage resulting from the buffeting she received when forced to land while nearing the Azores had definitely put her out of the race. The hull was looking, the message said, and one of the engine struts was badly damaged.

HICKEY IS EIGHTH

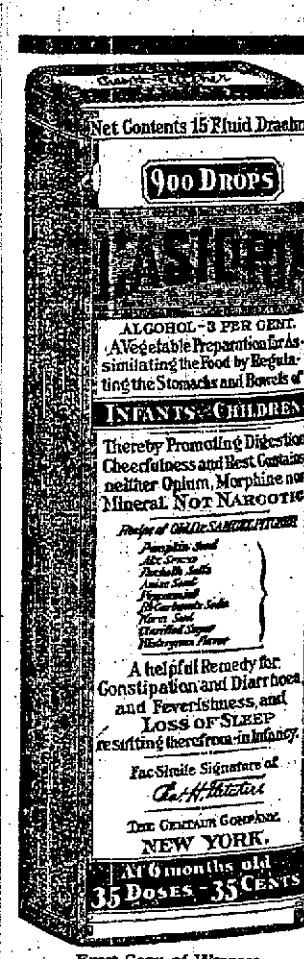

Local Man Drives Well in Races; Baisley Takes Pictures from Air. Denny Hickey, driving a Stuckel Special on the Uniontown speedway yesterday afternoon, was attended by that untamable creature known to all racers as the "jinx." While he finished eighth, in good time, he did not offset the other records that he has set for himself in previous races on the speedway.

Charles H. Baisley, another local man, experienced his first flight in an airplane when he took motion pictures of the speedway and of the surrounding towns. Baisley also took pictures of the races which may be shown at the Soloson or Paramount theatres.

The Victory Sweepstakes yesterday was distinctly a three-car race from the first lap when Milton, Mofford and Chevrolet showed their heads to the pack. thoroughfare, he said, was willing to pay his pro rata share of the cost but one. The paving of Robbins street, it was pointed out, would provide an easier thoroughfare to the downtown district which would be especially helpful in the winter when the Crawford avenue hill is dangerous. By going down Robbins street traffic can reach the business section via Fairview avenue.

James M. Ritchey, who appeared in behalf of the Madison avenue residents, did not have nearly all the property holders on that street on his petition. The curb and sidewalks have already been laid on Madison avenue. Council will advertise the paving of Madison avenue. Bids for the paving of Robbins street will be asked.

The purchasing agent was also authorized to reject all bids which had been submitted for the paving of First street, West Side, Murphy avenue, Francis avenue, Chestnut street and Davidson avenue, and to ask for new bids.

R. K. Long appeared to ask council to vacate a strip of land along Willis road in order to give him a frontage for some property belonging to him. The land was given to the city by the Jorgs heirs when that thoroughfare was paved. The matter was referred to Councilman Berg who will report on it at the next meeting.

J. J. Dougherty asked council to carry on the paving of Cedar avenue from Sycamore street to Isabella road. He said everyone was willing to pay his share of the cost. Council told him to bring in a petition signed by the property holders.

A resolution authorizing the purchasing agent to buy an old Pope-Hartford automobile from J. L. Stader for $200 was passed. The truck will be torn apart to get various sections which can be used in repairing the two combination fire trucks.

A resolution providing for the purchase of flowers to be planted in the city lawn was also passed. The city solicitor will be asked to proceed to collect on all liens due and collectible. The next meeting of council will be held on Monday, June 2.

THREE HOMES SOLD

A. B. Kurtz Buys Old Johnston Home. staid; H. M. Cuthbertson Sells.

A. B. Kurtz, the jeweler, purchased from Mrs. Charles Matson the old Johnston homestead at Poplar Grove, through the J. D. Porter agency, and expects to convert it into a summer home. The house is of brick and has all the conveniences. It is only a five-minute automobile ride from Conneltsville. Mr. Kurtz expects to make a number of improvements, including an attractive fence and several driveways.

The property of Ralph M. Cuthbertson, Sr., on Race street was sold to Dr. L. Dale Johnson, who recently located in Conneltsville. The property contains seven rooms, a finished third floor and is modern in every respect. Dr. Johnson and family expect to take possession of their new home about the middle of June or July 1. Dr. Johnson was formerly located at Ohio.

The other property sold, also by Mr. Porter, was that of Thomas Jones in South Prospect street, the purchaser being Jacob Kinsbury. The Jones property is a brick structure and has all the modern conveniences. Mr. Kinsbury expects to occupy the place.

King-Henry.
N. H. Henry, son of E. G. Henry of this city, and Mildred King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George King of Rockwood, and well known in this city, were married yesterday in Cumberland. RED CROSS WOMEN PLAN DINNER FOR 3,000 SOLDIERS

down to the present time, were progressing rapidly and within a short time complete plans would be ready for publication. There will be music appropriate for each scene. Owing to the massiveness of the pageant a place for presenting it has not yet been decided upon, but a site centrally located, so as to enable all persons to witness the wonderful performance, will be chosen. The Carnegie library lawn is entirely too small.

Plans are maturing for the Red Cross parade, which is expected to be the largest attraction of its kind ever held in the county. Captains will be appointed and they in turn will each appoint five lieutenants who will provide for 10 persons. The marchers will be headed by the executive committee of Fayette county, riding in a float. A novelty of the procession will be a human Red Cross composed of many persons. Every auxiliary of the county is expected to be represented in the line of march. The parade committee will get together soon and map out a route over which the marchers will traverse.

Miss Katharine Frisbee, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported that the committee was looking after the floats but as yet had made no definite decision.

Mrs. May, a representative of the Association of the Maccabees, reported that the review would complete further plans for its part in the celebration at the regular meeting to be held tonight. Mrs. Mary Hardwick of Uniontown, district deputy, has been placed in charge of the drill work.

Mrs. John Harshman of the Ladies' auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, reported that the auxiliary was willing to take part in the celebration which will help to make it a success.

Miss Clara Pritchard, of the Philip Freeman chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, reported that the chapter expected to take part in the parade and was planning something very nice.

Mrs. D. R. Reagan, of the Ladies of the Golden Eagle, reported that the order expected to conduct a lunch counter and help in other ways during the celebration.

Mrs. C. J. Ellis, of the Daughters of America, said that the order would do whatever it was asked to.

Mrs. J. Melvin Gray, chairman of the Charleston Comforts branch of the Navy League, stated that the branch had secured Rev. C. M. Watson of Norfolk, Va., formerly of Conneltsville, and Mrs. Montague Robinson of Philadelphia, chairman of the Navy League of Pennsylvania, as speakers for the Navy League. Rev. Watson has been closely connected with the soldiers and sailors during the war.

The Red Cross headquarters in the old high school building will be attractively and comfortably fitted up as a rest room and during the celebration the Civilian Relief will also meet there so as it will be convenient for the soldiers' desiring to seek information.

Persons having relatives who saw service overseas will be presented with gold chevrons, while silver chevrons will be distributed among the relatives of the soldiers stationed in training camps. The canteen committee will have charge of this distribution.

Peter Mullen Back.
J. A. Brennan received a telegram this morning from his cousin, Peter J. Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Mullen of Trotter, stating he had arrived in the States from overseas and was located at Camp Dix, N. J.

Girl Attempts Suicide.

Police Officer Joseph White yesterday investigated the case of Rosie Janik, 15 years old, who on Sunday night between the waiting room at Standard Shaft and Trout's crossing threw herself in front of the 9.15 car southbound. The story told Officer White at her home yesterday vindicated the man in the case who was said to have assaulted her. The story told Mr. White was that the man who went with this girl had been to a wedding and other girls had told wild stories to Rosie how her lover was going with other girls. When she walked to the waiting room he was talking to two girls and she ran to the track and seeing the light of the car threw herself in front of it. The motorman saw her and stopped the car. She was taken to the hospital where it was learned she had just become hysterical and had scratched herself, instead of putting up a fight with the man as was first suspected.
The girl lives in Spring street, Mount Pleasant, and was perfectly normal
when the police called on her yesterday. The family stated that when the girl left home she said they did not need to wait for her to come home.
From this it was deduced she intended to commit suicide.

Women Find Clear Skin In Simple Laxative

A sense of false modesty often prevents women from admitting that many of her ills and disorders are due primarily to constipation.

But women who know themselves have learned that headache remedies and beautifiers only cover the trouble but do not dislodge it.

What is needed is a remedy to move the bowels and stir up the torpid liver. An ever-increasing number of sensible women take a small dose of a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold by druggists under that name.

It will save a woman from the habitual use of headache remedies, skin lotions and similar makeshifts. Once the bowels are emptied and regulated, the headache and the pimples and blotches disappear. It is the rational, natural method.

A bottle of Syrup Pepsin lasts a family a long time, and all will find use for it from time to time. Thoughtful people are never without it in the house.

The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

GREAT WORK OF THE ENGINEERS AS BUILDERS AND FIGHTERS IN THE WAR

The return to Connellsville and different parts of the coke region of men who served with the 15th and other regiments of engineers in France makes very timely the appearance of a brief history of the work of the Engineer Corps of the Army in the great war, as prepared by the War Department.

Many of the accomplishments of the engineers have been published before as isolated incidents, but this history is the first complete and connected story which gives any idea of the extraordinary scope of the duties modern warfare has laid upon engineering troops.

Probably the best illustration of this so far as the troops in France are concerned, is the technical organization of the units of the engineers which reached the other side. There were seven regiments and two battalions of railway construction engineers; five battalions for maintenance of way; two battalions for maintenance of railway equipment; four regiments and one battalion to operate the main American railways in France; three regiments to operate light railways and their repair shops;
two regiments to operate the regular railway repair shops; two regiments and six separate battalions on general construction work; two regiments for storing and transporting engineer supplies; a forestry regiment; a light railway construction regiment; a road building regiment; a water supply regiment; a mining regiment; a quarrying regiment; a technical regiment for surveying and sound ranging;
three survey and printing battalions;
two railway transportation battalions;
an electrical and mechanical regiment; several separate companies to operate cranes; a camouflage service; five inland waterway companies to operate canal boats and the like;
five pontoon trains and a pontoon park; a railway transportation and stores battalion and a searchlight regiment.

These special units, all composed of men trained in civil life in the United States for the work they did in France, were in addition to the fighting engineers with each division, the sappers, who formed about eight per cent of all the combatant troops in France.

One section of the report is devoted to the developments of American railways in France and to the production of railway equipment in the United States to meet the call from the front.
There were shipped to France 1,303 locomotives before the armistice was signed, of which 908 were in service at that time. In addition, 18,313 freight cars were shipped abroad, both engines and cars having been produced specially for service in France.

These were employed upon the 937 miles of standard gauge track laid in France by the engineers with equipment shipped from this country and the rolling stock was in addition to great quantities of light railway equipment for front line work that was also sent abroad.

Hospital trains were obtained in England, 19 of them with a total of 304 cars having been completed by December, 1918, with 29 additional trains under construction. They cost more than $18,000 per car, but it is estimated that to have produced them in the United States and shipped them would have cost $40,000 per car.

The report lays stress on the fact that great progress was made during the war in the development of road building, railway and other engineering equipment which will be of value commercially in peace time. The motorized machine shops alone, it is stated, are practically certain to bring about in this country the use of moving shops of this character in agricultural communities as farming machinery increases.

"The day may come," the report says, "when the travelling machine shop will be a familiar sight upon our rural highways."

Among the motorized shops created,
were the photolithographic press trucks, which were able to reproduce maps from original sketches within 12 hours as compared with four days required by similar French and British units.

A special chapter is devoted to the engineering instruments developed during the war to locate hidden guns. In proving upon Allied designs, the Engineer Corps produced machines for this purpose, which operated with "uncanny accuracy," one of them having spotted 17 German gun positions in a single day. Subsequently, these were followed by instruments of even greater power and at the close of war there were 12 complete outfits, each covering a five mile stretch of front,
at work on the American lines.

Similar development of instruments for locating hostile airplanes carried out until it was possible to determine the location of a raider at night within an angle of three degrees. The American types produced were easily portable and quickly set up to aid the searchlights. A hint at the scientific developments which were in sight in connection with these sound ranging devices is contained in the following paragraph:

"When the fighting stopped our military scientists and others cooperating with them were working on the development of a sound ranging apparatus intended to give troops warning of shell fire by the enemy in their direction. The preliminary experiments found that at 4.1 miles these mechanisms could detect the firing of the gun as long as 19 seconds before the shell arrived, thus giving troops ample time to get under cover. Such a development was possible because of the far greater speed with which earth vibrations travel than those of sound in the air.

"Except for lack of time in the brief seconds between the firing of the gun and the arrival of the shell, it would be quite possible with this proposed apparatus to calculate almost exactly where the shell would land."

The corps produced also a new form of searchlight more powerful than any that had preceded it in any army and with which the second field army had been partially equipped.

"It weighed," the report says, "one-eighth as much as lights of former design, cost only one-third as much,
was about one-fourth as large in bulk and threw a light 10 per cent stronger than any other portable projector in existence."

The engineers were at work, when the fighting ended, upon a mechanism which would enable them to control searchlights from a distance.

The chapter devoted to the work of the Engineer Corps in France draws a vivid picture of the duties of the combat engineers who played their full part in the fighting from the beginning to the end. It also tells in detail of the building of the railways;
the cutting down of French forests to convert them into barracks for American troops; of the miles of highways built as shell fire tore them to pieces;
of cement mills taken over in France by American troops to provide trench materials; of the great map printing plant where the engineers finally were able to produce not only all maps needed for the American army, but

Chieftain FAST WHITE Shoe Dressing

even supplied the French Seventh and Eighth armies with these maps for the fronts. In this huge plant at LaGrasse, in November, over 1,000,000 litho-graphic prints were made and over a million sheets of type work done.
There is told, also, the story of a camouflage factory at Dijon, where material to blind enemy airplanes eyes and to confuse the enemy's pickets was turned out in vast quantities.

"Utilizing and applying the new knowledge and scientific achievements of recent years," the report says in concluding that portion devoted to the engineers, "drawing upon the fund of experience acquired by the regular army in its theoretical studies and past wars, making available the vast amount of technical skill which has assisted this nation to the present commercial and industrial status, the engineers of the United States Army worked and fought, planned, and accomplished in France, a work which in magnitude exceeds any similar undertaking recorded in American history. From base port to first waves of an assault upon the enemy's positions, engineer troops have been constantly in action first to last and have 'carried on' always with the high ideals of the profession and with the motto
of the corps of engineers 'Essaysons before them.'"

CURBING THE SPEED FIENDS.

It would be a splendid thing if the activity of the State Constabulary in curbing the automobile speeding on the mountain roads in the vicinity of Poplar Grove on Sunday could be extended to the streets of Connelville.

On Bates street, South Pittsburg street, at Brimstone corner and elsewhere in the city there are such frequent, flagrant and persistent violations of traffic regulations and such indifference on the part of drivers to the safety of pedestrians and other vehicles, that some stern measures are necessary in the interests of public safety.

The violations of the speed laws and defiance of the provision prohibiting the use of the motor have been complained of to the city authorities time after time, but without any abatement of the offenses. True the city is without an up-to-date traffic ordinance but in lieu thereof the old ordinance, which prescribes proper penalties for the violation of the state law, is still in force. It is determined and systematic effort on part of the department of public affairs were made, the enforcement of this ordinance would correct the practices which are daily impeding the lives of men, women and children in every part of the city. This ordinance does not meet the requirements in all particulars but it is sufficient to stop the habit many drivers have formed of making speedways out of many of our much traveled streets.

If effective restraint is not soon laid upon these speed fiends by the mayor's department, the people of the city, like those in the vicinity of Poplar Grove, will make an appeal to the State Constabulary. Then there will be something doing.

DOWN TO BUSINESS.

Congress was organized yesterday without the manifestation of any semblance of factional strife. The Republicans, realizing the need of getting down to business without any waste of time, lost motion or other delays, had assembled prepared to take up their duties at once. The purpose of the majority is to work for the best interests of the country and to demonstrate that their regard for their interests is higher and more important than party advantage.

With Senator Cummings of Iowa, a native of Greene county, as president pro tem of the Senate; Senator Penrose chairman of the Finance committee of the Senate; Senator Knox one of the acknowledged leaders in the Senate; Congressman Crago holding an important post as a member of the Military Affairs Committee; Congressman Temple a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Congressman Kendall assuming his duties, Pennsylvanians and former Pennsylvanians will be certain to occupy a large place in the deliberations.

The legislation to be enacted in the present session aside from its relation to the vast problems of readjusting our country to a peace basis, will have a direct bearing upon the next presidential election. The Republicans are placing national service above party advantage hence they can be depended upon to make a record that will so justify popular confidence that at the next presidential election a representative of their party will be chosen to assist in restoring those policies that have made our country great and will insure its future prosperity on an unprecedented scale.

STOPPING SALARY RAISES.

The courage and common sense with which Governor Spruiell is refusing to approve a long list of promiscuous measures designed to increase salaries or to multiply the numbers of public officers will meet with favor among the taxpayers of the state. Even if the legislators do not themselves have any comprehension of the consequences of increased tax burdens it is most fortunate for the state that the governor has the foresight to prevent an otherwise almost unrestricted flood of bills which, if made laws, would vastly increase the cost of the maintenance of our courts and many county offices.

A few weeks ago Governor Spruiell vetoed a bill which provided a large increase in the salaries of justices and court clerks in counties of 150,000 population. Yesterday he applied the ax to a similar measure that would have made a similar increase in counties of 800,000 to 1,400,000. In disapproving this measure the governor said:

"I have already vetoed a bill increasing the salaries of justices in certain counties of the state. I can see no reason at this time warranting the increase of justices' salaries and if Governor Spruiell continues his watchfulness, as it is believed he will, many other bills which provide for increases in public expenditures will share a similar fate. Any deserving legislation which meets a public need, even if it involves a larger expenditure, will no doubt be approved by him, but the taxpayers of the state may take comfort in the knowledge that all such bills will have to stand the governor's very rigid scrutiny before he will authorize additional tax burdens to be laid.

The Prize Mental Gymnast.

Cleveland: Daily Iron Trade.
"It was only about six years ago that the President set his face like flint, apparently and for political contemplation in the United States, against the so-called six-power loan to China, declaring 'America must not participate in this exploitation of China.' That ended the matter, although China needed the money. Today one reads 20 banks will assist in putting a Chinese loan to develop the country in common with the banks of other nations. If the President lives long enough he may succeed in mentally turning himself entirely inside out. He holds the championship belt as the most highly developed mental gymnast of the century."

MONEY CAN'T DO EVERYTHING.

He is a banker proud and rich, when poor men come beseeching dough he looks to their dismal tales then very promptly answers "no." Great sums of gold are his to spend, And if you pledge your very life some time, you'll find you can't lend. But though he yields to great a power and owns so much for which I banker, I write this in my book of joy, when I write my golf, I trim the banker.

I cannot write a goodly check, I cannot walk into his place And pry the shekels from his grasp With pleasant word or smiling face, I do not meet on Tuesday noon to settle questions of finance To hear a borrower's plea for gold and wonder if to take a chance; I'm just a poor hard-working man, a drifter with no place to anchor. But when it comes to playing golf, I've got the edge upon the banker.

Down in his marble office fine I'm forced to do the way he thinks, But (let me write it modestly) he follows me upon the links. 'Tis I who hold the honor then, his gold cannot do everything. With all his wealth he cannot buy an easy and a rhythmic swing. So I've this satisfaction sweet to soothe the sting of other rancors, The worst of dubs on every course are very apt to be the bankers.

By a unanimous vote, of every member present, the First Lutheran of Greensburg at the Sunday morning service, voted to extend a call to Rev. F. C. Martin of Rochester, N. Y., to the pastorate of the Greensburg congregation. The First Lutheran congregation has been supplied by visiting ministers since their pastor, Dr. Charles P. Home From a Foreign Shore

"The Fighting Tenth"

Written for The Courier.

The surviving lost-soldiers of Pennsylvania are returning home from their successful campaign in the great war for freedom in Europe, where the American army poured forth its blood and lives to sustain and preserve for the future blessing of mankind, the essential principle of popular right over military or kingly might—to create and defend a World Democracy and make it safe from submission to a Prussian Autocracy.

We are hearing now from the tongues of our own beloved boys their wonderful stories of martial experiences in the countries beyond the sea; of strenuous service-training in tented camps; of long and tiresome, but useful practice hikes on foot; of joys and sacrifices in trench and dugout from earth and air; of mortal struggles when armed fighters met face to face in the personal encounters of battle; of thousands of gallant deaths in these bloody combats for human liberty; of hospital hardships and their helpless patients and nurses destroyed by the bombs of dastard enemies; of awful tortures from poison-gas spread on every hand by the devices of cruel minds and malignant hearts; of lonely spots mid scenes of strife where rest a host of unnamed heroes whose splendid lives were swept up in the red flame of conflict, and whose scarred and mutilated bodies there sank down to sepulchres which bear no markers now, but where at head and feet the invisible Angels of Peace keep their eternal vigil.

Pennsylvania welcomes home the commonwealth's dear sons! The state is proud of their superb achievement in the complete and permanent overthrow of the ignoble Hun. We sympathize with them in the burdens and hardships they have borne. We admire their courageous tributes of life and limb to the cause for which they fought. With them, we mourn for the brave comrades left behind on the glorified fields of France. Memories of these martyrs, entwined in the records of their deathless deeds, are imperishable. All the patriots who have returned, all who sleep in named and nameless graves beneath the tiles of an alien soil, their mothers all, their widows, wives and children, are embosomed forever in the undying affections of Pennsylvania.

And now, to perpetuate this sentiment of victory, and uphold the Treaty of Peace and Justice that is to unfold in enduring form and substance, all citizens and all peoples of Pennsylvania are solemnly resolved that the terms to Germany proposed by the Paris Conference are right and just, and should be enforced to the uttermost degree. If in any respect they are lacking, or unexpectedly lenient, such shortcomings lies only in practical inability to impose upon Germany the full punishment that her infamies merit.

Germany began and waged the war with a vindictive savagery never before known in the experience of mankind. With wicked intent, buttressed by blasphemous prayer and song, and with plans of joyful welcome, she prepared to greet "Der Tag," but this unholy purpose was happily turned to naught by the mighty forces of Providence and Democracy, so that now, behold, instead of "Der Tag," Germany grovels, curses and whines in the thick blackness of "Der Nacht."

Germany designed to subdue and enslave the world to the autocratic will of a privileged and exclusive Germanic social order. The cup of bitterness and woe now at German lips was fashioned by malignant German thought, and filled to overflowing by German malevolence, but it was to be drained to its dregs by other peoples. "Deutschland Uber Alles!" was the exuberant German hymn of anticipatory triumph. But the devilish draught has returned to the fields who brewed it. Let it be swallowed now by Germans to the last repugnant drop, peacefully if they will, by force if needs be.

Germany must be taught to feel, and all the world to remember, that God will not be mocked.

Let all Pennsylvanians pledge hearty endorsement of the Treaty of Paris and pray for complete fulfillment thereof.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH RAISED AND EXPENDED OVER $10,000 IN YEAR

Largest Amount in Its History; Annual Shows Large Increases in All Congregational Activities.

The Christian Church, Annual,
which is a statistical record of the activities of this church and its auxiliaries during the last fiscal year, was distributed at Sunday's services.

This pamphlet gives a complete directory of the officers of the church roster of members and the various organizations engaged in some branch of the work of the congregation. The Honor Roll of those who have served or are still serving in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps carries the names of 73 young men, two of whom, Corporal Fred Daniels, Company D, and Private Lloyd J. Shaw, Medical Detachment of the 110th Infantry, died from wounds received in action. Sergeant Charles Fretts, Company D, was killed in action.
Sergeant Wilbert Sullivan, Company D, was wounded in action. The Young Men's Class, taught by W. P.
Schmuck, had an enviable record in the war. Of the 14 members enrolled, 12 entered some branch of the service before the close of the war.
One of the gold stars on the church's service flag represents Fred Daniels,
a member of this class.

A summary of the financial reports shows that a total of $10,922.22 was collected for all purposes during the year, the largest in the history of the congregation. Expenditures, 49 per cent of which went to missions, benevolences and other outside work,
were $10,578.59, an increase of $4, 293.87 over the preceding year.

The membership of the church now numbers 531 resident and 38 non-resident, a total of 569. The Sunday school has an enrollment of 456 pupils and teachers. There were six deaths in the congregation during the year:
Mrs. Ruth S. Crowe, Henry Kurtz, O.
P. Lenhart, Fred Daniels, Lloyd J.
Shaw and William Percy.

GERMAN MIND HAS GONE WILD

Nation is Struggling Under Temporary Insanity.

DELUSIONS AS TO PEACE

People Believe Germany Was Not Beaten Militarily, but Simply Got Hungry and Sick of War and Therefore Accepted Entente Conditions—They Now Talk of the "Next War" and Revenge While Their Nation Perishes.

German psychology has always baffled the rest of the world, or at least those who tried to understand why a German thought as he did. The world is due for a still worse baffling if it tries to understand what goes on in the German mind today.

Mentally, the German mind, suddenly thrown upon its own resources by the fall of the old system which fed people thoughts as well as food, has gone wild. Under the strain of the war and due to the sudden changes, the Germans have become childlike psychologically. This is taking Germans generally.

Thoughtful, serious Germans, when you occasionally find them, realize the temporary insanity, if it can be called that, under which the Germans as a nation are struggling.

It is the only way of understanding the lack of realization as to the real condition of things, a wave of which has swept Germany. No one looks farther than his nose, and every man and woman is interested entirely in his or her immediate self. There is little broad vision expressed in papers, in speeches, or in personal opinion as you hear them in Germany.

Talk of "Next War."

To cite specific cases. The peace and why it was signed is one of the German delusions. Practically every man, woman and child believes Germany was not defeated militarily, but simply got hungry and sick of war, and therefore accepted the entente conditions. This belief prevails in spite of the public statements of men like Erzberger, who have told the Germans their armies were defeated militarily.

Perhaps this belief fosters the talk regarding "the next war." Not only occasionally but frequently, and by all classes of people you are asked: "Well, when is the next war coming?" Often Germans go further than that and speak specifically of the "next war with France to get revenge." There is war talk on all hands, though Germany is in a state of collapse that is almost hopeless, and is entirely dependent upon the will of the allies for her future.

How much the German believes of what he says is another matter. Probably he is out of his head, but this same disinclination to realize actual conditions as they were led the Germans to support the military class during the first four years of the war. The German apparently does not think things out any more than he did.

In his attitude regarding the entente the German manifests about the same breadth of vision. Papers are filled with vindictive articles, much of which is furnished by bureaus established for the purpose, in Holland and Switzerland, which carry sensation rather than news.

Whether this campaign to stir up hatred is organized is not certain. But the fact remains that Germans are being inspired with a hatred of France that never existed before, and that makes being good neighbors the mere dream.

Strikes Now the Rage.

It is no uncommon thing for half a dozen or more strikes to occur because one group of people demand better pay, or because a law is not passed as quickly as a certain class wishes. No doubt the conditions are bad, but the strikes for sympathy just make them worse. Employers find that workmen who have come from the front are only half as efficient, not because they are out of practice, but because of the abnormal psychology under which they live now. Mentally, they have become boisterous, erratic and lazy.

This wave of irresponsibility is one of the greatest dangers Germany faces and makes the establishment of the new republic extremely difficult. The government claims it is due to undernourishment, which is partly true, but not entirely, since groups of men who have been well fed are subject to the same germ of loose thinking.

One of the results of the war has been the lack of respect for law and order and a carelessness with human life. It has made the Germans ready to use arms for any small issue they deem unsettling otherwise.

Probably it will be a question of years before the German becomes clear-headed and clear-thinking. He started out with an abnormal psychology, inspired by conceit, and the war gradually made him ripe for the mental collapse that took place with the revolution.

Former King's Grandson Leads Revolt. A grandson of King Johannes of Abyssinia, who died in 1886, has revolted and declared himself king under the name of Theodore. The government has sent out a punitive expedition to put down the rebellion.

CHAPTER XVIII

The Hidden Chamber

Simon turned just in time. The wheel went crashing to the floor and rebounded out of the room and along the little hall. Duke jumped in terror from the place where he crouched.

And then the last strand broke and I was free to slip the cords from my limbs.

"You old fool!" screamed Leroux, catching Duchaine by the wrists. But Charles Duchaine possessed the strength of a madman. He grasped Leroux round the waist and clung to him and would not be shaken off.

"Kill him!" he screamed. "He is a spy! He has come to betray me to the government!"

What followed was the work of a moment. I saw Jacqueline pull down both broadsword from the wall. She flung one down beside me just as I was staggering to my feet.

Leroux shook off the old man at last. He turned on me. I swung the sword aloft and brought it down upon his skull.

Heaven knows I struck to kill; but my wrist was feeble from the ropes.

I Struck to Kill.

and the blade fell flat. It drew no blood, but Leroux dropped like a stricken ox upon the floor.

"This way!" gasped the old man. He pulled at Jacqueline's arm, and half led and half dragged her through the open door behind his chair. I followed. Leroux sprang into the room, calling, but whether to us or to the other ruffians I did not know. Leroux sat up and looked about him, dazed and bewildered.

Then I was in the little room with Jacqueline and Duchaine, and he turned and bolted the door behind us. He seemed possessed of all the strength and decision of youth again. When I stood there before the room had been as dark as pitch, but now a flicker of light was at the far end.

A voice cried: "M'sieur! M'sieur! I have not forgotten thee!"

It was Pierre Caribon. I saw his figure silhouetted against the light of the dining candle which he held in his hand.

Duchaine had placed one arm about his daughter's waist and was urging her along. But she stopped and looked back to me. I saw she held one broadsword in her hand, as I held the other.

"Come, monsieur," she gasped. "I am going back." I answered, fumbling for the bolt Duchaine had drawn.

"Not we, sure, inside. It is a secret room," M'sieur made it in the first days of his sojourn here in case he were pursued, and now he and Pierre and he knew the secret. Ah, come, monsieur, come!"

But I meant to kill Leroux and still felt for the bolt.

As I fumbled there the door splintered suddenly and Jacqueline cried out.

Then I yielded reluctantly to Jacqueline's soft violence. I followed her through the dark chamber, under an archway of stone, and through a winding passage in the rock. Pierre's candle flickered before us, and in another moment we had squeezed through a narrow opening into a chamber in the cliff.

On the ground were five or six large stones and Pierre began to fling them into the aperture through which we had passed. In a minute the place was completely sealed, and we four stood and looked breathlessly at one another within what might have been a crotchet.

The chamber seemed at one time to have been prepared for such a contingency. As had occurred, for there were wall niches and the door, though they had rotted and partly disintegrated from the dampness.

"M'sieur, he makes this place in case government came to take him," explained Pierre as he placed the rug. "No can find, no can break down stone door. Other way Simon not know—only M'sieur and me. Old Caribon he come that way; he see you and know it time to come here. Soon time to kill Simon come as well."

"When, M'sieur's name, will it come?" I asked.

"Come soon," His diabolical smile answered Pierre Caribon.

"I go now," he announced. "Tomorrow I come for you, take all through tunnel. You stay here till I come; all sleep till morning."

"I will go with you, Pierre," I said. "Kill under my obsession. But he laid his heavy hand upon my arm and pushed me away."

"You no kill Simon," he answered. "Why you no kill him again when you have sword? Only diabolical can kill him. When time come diabolical tell old Caribon. You sleep now. I go for take my woman and get safe through tunnel to place I know."

"When my woman and get safe I come back to M'sieur and M'sieur's."

I lay down. The silence was lonely, itself, and not rendered less lonely by the occasional cries of the old man and the drip, drip of water. I could not see anything, and Jacqueline might have been a woman of stone, for she made not the least movement.

At last I spoke to her. "Jacqueline!"

"I heard her start and knew that she had raised her head and was looking after me. I crawled toward her, dragging my blanket after me. I felt in the darkness for the place where I knew her hand must be and took it in mine."

"Jacqueline!" I said again.

"Ah, M'sieur!" she whispered. In her voice went to my heart. "It might have been so different."

"If what, Jacqueline?"

"If there had not been the blood of a dead man between us," she moaned.

"If you had not killed him for me, for I learned that she had mercifully spared the full remembrance of what had happened in the Tenth street apartment. She thought that it was I who had killed Louis d'Espereux."

And how could I deny this, when to so would be to bring to her mind the knowledge of her own dreadful guilt?

The hours wore away, and we three lay there, two waiting and one dreaming of the old days of youth, no doubt. I tried to light the candle to see the time, but my shaking hand sent it flying across the cave, and when I searched for my matches I found that the box was empty.

It seemed an eternity since we had come there. It is one thing to wait for dawn, and quite another thing to wait where dawn will never come.

I resolved to follow the exit for a little distance to see whether it led, and if I could discover the light of day.

So I took my sword and sallied out through the passage in the cliff.

I had only proceeded a few steps when the air grew cold and sweet, and before I had reversed two hundred yards I saw a dim light in the distance. This was no candle light but that of day. So I had endured all those agonies of mind with the open air but a short distance away!

As I advanced I fancied that I heard the soft pattering of feet behind me. I halted and listened intently. I crouched against the wall and waited. But I heard nothing now except the distant pattering of the catpaws. How sweet they sounded now!

I listened intently, leaning against the wall and facing backward, holding my sword ready to meet any intruder. But there was no sound from within, except the sighing which one hears in a tunnel, and snuffled at last that I had been the victim of an over-wrought imagination I pursued my course. But I had not gone six paces before I heard a scream that still rings in my ears today, and a shadow sprang out of the darkness and rushed at me. It was old Charles Duchaine, his white hair streaming behind him; his face bore an expression of indelible horror and rage, and in his hand he held the other sword.

He struck at me, a great, sweeping blow which would almost have cut me in two.

He struck at me, a great, sweeping blow which would almost have cut me in two.

my guard. At last a random blow of mine swept the weapon from his feeble old hand and sent it whirling down the cavern into the lake below.

Then he was at my throat, and it was fortunate that there was firm rock instead of slippery ice beneath us, or we should both have followed the sword.

"Hold yourself, for heaven's sake, Monsieur!" I gasped as I gained a momentary advantage over him. "Don't you know me? I am your friend. I want to save you!"

"You shall not take me! I have done nothing! It was years ago! Let me go! Let me go!" he screamed.

I released him for a moment, hoping that his disordered brain would calm enough for him to recognize me and that, when he saw my motives were peaceful, he would grow quiet.

But suddenly, with a final howl, he sprang past me, sweeping me against the wall, and leaped out on the ledge.

I held my breath. I expected to see him stagger to his death below. But he stood motionless in the middle of the little platform and stretched out his arms toward the raging torrent as though in invocation. Then he leaped across with the agility of a wild sheep and rushed on into the tunnel beyond.

I started back, keeping this time to the right side of the tunnel, until I heard the gurgling of the brook. Then I heard Jacqueline's footsteps.

"Who is it?" she called wildly. "M'sieur! M'sieur!"

I caught her as she swayed toward me. "He has gone Jacqueline," I said. "I went into the tunnel to try to find the way. He had been feigning sleep and he crept after me. I tried to stop him. He was so frightened that I thought it best to let him go. He ran on into the tunnel!"

"We must find him," she said. "He will come back, Jacqueline."

"He will never come back!" she answered. "He must have been planning this and waiting for me to sleep. He may be hiding somewhere. We must search for him."

"Let us go, then, Jacqueline," I answered.

I led her back into the tunnel on what was to be, I hoped, our final journey. We reached the ledge. The star had faded now, and the whole sky was bright with the red clouds of dawn.

At length I saw daylight ahead of me, and there was no sound of the torrents.

I left Jacqueline in the cave for a few moments and went into the smaller one near by, where I had seen the provisions on the preceding days. I found a small box of hard biscuits, with which I stuffed the pockets of my coat, and, happier still, a small revolver and some cartridges, to which I helped myself liberally.

Then I went back to Jacqueline. "Jacqueline," I said, "let us go on. Perhaps your father is on his way outside the tunnel."

"We cannot go without my father," she answered, shaking her head in determination.

"Jacqueline," I said, "if we can find your father you will come with me. Because it has occurred to me, I went on, 'that if he had come this way his footprints would be in the mud beside the stream. It would take an hour or two for them to fill up again. So perhaps he did not come this far, but is hiding in some cave in the tunnel through which we came. Will you wait for me here while I go back and search?'"

She nodded and I went back into that interminable tunnel again.

CHAPTER XIX

The Bolt That Lured

I went along the tunnel in the direction of Le Vieil Ange, picking my way very carefully, peering into the numerous small caves and fissures in the wall on either hand. And I was about half way through when I saw a shadow running in front of me and making no sound.

"It was Duchaine. There could be no mistaking that tall, gaunt figure, just visible against the distant day."

I raced along the tunnel after him. But he seemed to be endowed with the speed of a deer, for he kept his distance easily, and I would never have caught him had he not stopped for an instant at the approach of the ledge.

There, just as he was pausing himself to leap, I seized him by the arm. He did not attempt violence but gazed at me with hesitation and pathetic doubt.

"M'sieur," I pleaded, "won't you come back with me and let us talk it over? Jacqueline is with me."

"No, no," he cried, laughing. "You can't catch me with such a trick as that. My little daughter has gone to New York to make our fortunes at M'sieur's gaming house. She will be back soon, loaded down with gold."

"She has come back," I answered. "She is not fifty yards away."

"With gold?" he inquired, looking at me thoughtfully.

"With gold," I answered, trying to attract his imagination as Leroux had done. "She has rich gold, red gold, such as you will love. You can take up the coils in your fingers and let the gold stream slip through them. Come with, monsieur."

I grasped him by the arm and tried to lead him with me. My argument had moved him. I thought I had won.

THE SOISSON.

"DE LUXE ANNIE"—A Select picture in which Norma Talmadge, the winsome player, has never appeared to a better advantage is being shown today. As Julie Kendal, the wife of a prominent lawyer who is interested in the workings of criminal minds, whom a blow on the head turns adrift in the world a total victim of aphasia. Miss Talmadge registers a tremendous hit in a most realistic portrayal. She becomes the confederate of Jimmie Fitzpatrick and, with him, operates the de-luxe book game a variant of the old badger game. Later, although his face seems strangely familiar, she meets her husband, treats him as a stranger and seeks to victimize him. On the next morning Kendal sends Julie some roses, she thinks he is "fresh" and decides to victimize him. An operation restores her memory, and with it, the happy family life which had blessed the home of the Kendals before the catastrophe. Eugene O'Brien is seen as Jimmie Fitzpatrick, while Frank Mills, plays opposite Miss Norma. In the role of Walter Kendal, her husband. A selected comedy is also being shown. Wednesday and Thursday, Dorothy Phillips, supported by an all-star cast will be presented in "The Heart of Humanity," a great war picture. Friday and Saturday, Pauline Frederick, the celebrated actress, will be featured in "The Woman on the Index."

THE PARAMOUNT.

"A YANKEE PRINCESS"—Presenting Bessie Love the winsome and talented Vitaphone star in one of the best roles of her screen career is being shown today. The story is adapted from "Princess Patsy," Miss Love is seen as Patsy O'Reilly, who grew up in Flannigan's apartments, and when suddenly transplanted to a finishing school so exclusive that it cost $1000 to learn to spell, she was somewhat out of her element. How she brought her snobbish sisters to her way of thinking on other subjects forms a live and fascinating picture. Patsy was an heiress but the girls would not recognize her because she could boast no ancestry. She asked her father to get her one not realizing what it was all about and he did so. Then she was "recognized" and happy. But a bogus Lord knew of the false colors under which the O'Reillys were sailing and sought to force Patsy to marry him. The bogus Lord and his mother are retired forthwith, and Patsy happily agrees to become the real Lady Windbourne, kidnapped when a youth. In the supporting cast are Robert Gordon, George Pierce, Aggie Herring, J. Carlton Weatherby, Katherine Griffith, Max Asher and others. A selected comedy is also being shown Thursday, "Three Green Eyes," featuring prominent World stars, including Montague Love, Johnnie Hines, Carlyle Blackwell, Evelyn Greeley and June Elvidge, will be presented.

THE SOISSON.

"THE HEART OF HUMANITY"—A thrilling drama of love and war, with Dorothy Phillips seen in the leading role, will be presented tomorrow and Thursday. This is an eight reel production. It depicts the tenderness of the mother heart in its conflict with the horrors of war. It pays a deserved tribute to womanhood as expressed in the Red Cross nurse. The whole production from beginning to end is fraught with the spirit of those great days when an anxious world hung breathlessly upon word from the seething battle front in Flanders. It reflects the hush that fell upon civilization when the forces of humanity came to final grip with the ruthless might of autocracy, and it echoes the great cry of joy that sounded around the world when the Hun line crumbled before the Allied attack and fled backward towards the sheltering frontiers of Germany to sue for peace. Into the midst of these stirring scenes there mingles its way the gentle romance of Nanette, an American girl reared in the Northwoods of Canada, and of her Canadian lover, John Patricia. Joined as war is begun, as war progresses they are separated to meet again where the giant guns thunder their challenge on the fields of France. Thither John goes as an officer on the Royal Flying Corps and there Nanette earkening to the cries of motherless

THE VICTOR ARTISTS.

A real treat, with big time stars as the attraction is offered by P. T. McDonald in bringing the Victor record makers to Connelville next Saturday evening. Nine of the best known talking machine artists are on the program, and an evening of delight to music lovers is promised. The program will include some of the latest musical successes and the entertainment is declared to be better and bigger than that presented here a year ago.

The company is virtually the same that appeared here last year. Three new faces are in the aggregation, Frank Croxton, Monroe Silver and Fred Banta. Silver has gained a great reputation as a monologist. As an imitator of the Jewish dialect he is said to have few equals. Those who have heard "Cohen's Picnic" and "Cohen's Troubles" on the talking machine will take delight in hearing Silver deliver his talks in person. Fred Banta is a pianist and composer. In addition to accompanying the singers, he will give several piano solos, introducing some of his best known compositions.

The other members of the company are well known, particularly to those who have talking machines. Billy Murray has for years set the pace in topical songs, and his selections this year are particularly funny. Murray also acts as the interlocutor. John H. Myers, Henry Burr and Albert Campbell make up the Sterling Trio, and with Frank Croxton, compose the Peerless Quartet. In addition to the trio and quartet numbers, each is listed for solos.

Fred Van Eps returns with the organization and his banjo numbers will receive cordial applause.

The demand for a return date of this organization was insistent last year, but could not be arranged at that time. It was also impossible to get them to Connelville when they were in this section some weeks ago. Mr. McDonald persisted in his efforts, however, and was successful in obtaining the only open date that remained despite the fact that the company finds it necessary to make a long jump to get here.

The advance sale of tickets indicates that the 902 seats in the High School Auditorium will be quickly taken. The advance sale opens at McDonald's, in the Royal Hotel block, Wednesday morning. Those who have already purchased tickets may exchange them for reserved seats. Dunbar patrons may obtain tickets at the Duncan Electric Music Company.

JUST GOT OVER A COLD?

Look out for kidney troubles and backache. Colds overtax the kidneys and often leave them weak. For weak kidneys—well, read what a Conneville woman says:

"Mrs. Lizzie Knight, 401 Francis Ave., says: 'For years I was almost crippled with my back and couldn't find a remedy that would help me. The pains across my joints were severe and I lost strength and was tired all the time. I could hardly get around the house to do my work. I had dizzy spells and headaches and my sight blurred. Colds settled on my kidneys. I was simply miserable with kidney trouble, but I found a cure when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Two boxes made me well and I have been entirely free from kidney trouble since.'"

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded, or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says: "Everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful."
